Additional information for Algebra I and Geometry students

For advanced math students who will be taking Algebra I or Geometry, a Texas Instruments TI-84 Plus Silver Edition calculator may be used but is not required; this model will be used in the following years in the Upper School mathematics courses. As these graphing calculators are expensive, you should only purchase one if you are not likely to misplace it! (You may find these to be less expensive in the United States or in a duty-free store.) Otherwise, a scientific calculator (with sin, cos, tan, square root, and exponent ^ features) is fine.
